Boat owners and recreatonists should be aware of the declining level of Alcova Reservoir and take proper precautions.

The annual drawdown of the reservoir will begin on Thursday, Oct. 1. During the month of October, Alcova Reservoir will be lowered approximately 10 feet by approximately four inches per day from Oct. 1 through 11 and Oct. 17 through 31. From Oct. 12 through 16, the reservoir will be lowered approximately two inches per day.

Alcova Reservoir's normal winter operating range is between 5,487 to 5,489 feet. Water released in the drawdown will be stored downstream in Glendo Reservoir.
