

Coal ash association names new executive director

Jan. 26 -- The American Coal Ash Association has named Thomas H. Adams as its new executive director.

Adams replaces David C. Goss, who is retiring from the association. He has served as the executive director of the American Shotcrete Association for the last six years and in leadership roles for several concrete industry associations over the last 30 years.

"Mr. Adams' leadership skills and expertise will continue the tremendous momentum the ACAA has experienced over the last several years under the leadership of David Goss," said Mark Bryant, chairman of the ACAA.

Contact Waste & Recycling News reporter Joe Truini at 330-865-6166 or jtruini@crain.com