LARAMIE, Wyo. - A Laramie company that recycles wood from Wyoming snow fences is expanding its warehouse space.

Centennial Woods says it needs more space to process and inventory the millions of linear feet of snow fence that it has been reclaiming this year.

Company warehouse manager Jesse Butts says the added space also allows Centennial Woods to process reclaimed wood into products more quickly and increase the quality of grading and cutting work.

Centennial Woods reclaims and processes snow fence materials into products such as siding, flooring, wainscoting and furniture.

It has reclaimed some 6 million linear feet of Wyoming snow fence.
