

Blog Question of the Week: Why Are You or Aren't You Biking to Work?

Release date: 05/14/2008

Contact Information: Jeffrey Levy, (202) 564-4355 / levy.jeffrey@epa.gov

(5/14/08) Ever wanted to tell EPA what you thought on an environmental topic? Each week, you have your chance in the EPA blog, Greenversations. Each question is an open-ended blog entry; please share your thoughts as comments.

This week's question:

Why are you or aren't you biking to work?

Biking is healthy, it prevents air pollution, and it can even save you money (filled your tank recently?). So why aren't you biking to work? Need more bike paths? Different policies from your employer? Government sponsorship or policies? Or are you just a couch potato? If you ARE biking, tell us about your route and experiences!

Share your answer: http://blog.epa.gov/blog/2008/05/12/qotwbikingtowork/

Get email when we post a new question:

http://service.govdelivery.com/service/subscribe.html?code=USAEPA_345